

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH: SUNDAY, MAY 27, 1900

NUMBER 358

TO TAKE THE CENSUS

Superintendent Pratt to Begin Work Next Friday.

ENUMERATORS READY

SMALL ARMY TO SPREAD OUT OVER UTAH.

Expected that the Results Will Show That This State Is Entitled to Two Congressmen—Questions to Be Asked—Population of Salt Lake—Points of Interest.

The plans are now all complete for the taking of the twelfth census of Utah and on next Friday, June 1, under the direction of Superintendent Arthur Pratt, an army of 215 enumerators will be spread out over the state inquiring into the most minute details of the people's private business. Mr. Pratt says that everything is now in readiness for the commencement of the work. In Salt Lake there will be fifty-five men and women at work and they are expected to complete every detail in two weeks. In the country districts, thirty days are allowed for the work.

In the large cities the enumerators will be paid so much per head in rural districts they will be paid by the day, from $5 to $6 according to conditions. Much of the work in Salt Lake, Ogden, Logan, Provo, Park City and a number of the other places of the state in regard to the various industries, will be taken out of the hands of the enumerators and turned over to special agencies. The census office sent direct from Washington.

The work of taking the census is divided under four separate heads and special schedules are provided for each class of work. These branches are population, agriculture, manufacture and mortality. The questions asked are not so many this year as in previous census years but they are numerous enough yet to cause kicking galore.

The government holds that the enumerator has the right to "water" every house, institution and establishment to secure information. The following are the questions that must be answered under the head of population:

- 1—Surname, Christian name, initial.
- 2—Residence, street, number of house.
- 3—Relationship of each member to head of family.
- 4—Color or race.
- 5—Sex.
- 6—Age last birthday.
- 7—Day, month and year when born.
- 8—Single, married, widow, widower or divorced.
- 9—Number of years married.
- 10—Number of children.
- 11—Sex of these children.
- 12—Place of birth; if in the United States, give state or territory; if of foreign birth, give country.
- 13—Where was your father born? (Same conditions as foregoing.)
- 14—If of foreign birth, when did you come to the United States?
- 15—How many years have you resided in the United States?
- 16—Have you been naturalized? How many years since you became a citizen?
- 17—What is your occupation, trade or profession? (This applies to persons 10 years of age or over.)
- 18—How many months during the year are you employed?
- 19—How many months have you attended school?
- 20—Can you read?
- 21—Can you write?
- 22—Give the facts concerning your education.
- 23—Do you own the house in which you live?
- 24—Do you rent the house in which you live?
- 25—If you own the house, is it free or mortgaged? (Similar questions apply to farms.)

Three More Schedules.

The above are the questions under one schedule and there are four schedules. Under the mortality schedule all the facts must be ascertained as to every person who died in the year from January 1, 1899, to May 31, 1900. Every person alive on the first day of June next will be counted in the coming census; he will be counted even though he die on the second day of the month. But a child not born until the 2nd of June will be ignored and must wait for ten years to get himself counted. Every fact concerning the death of every person during the year just preceding the census must be recorded, the place of birth, the residence, the occupation, the cause of the death, the date, the name of the attending physician and all other information bearing on the case.

Agriculture and manufacture are gone into in the most minute detail, there being a sufficient number of questions on one schedule to fill a small volume. E. H. Callister of Salt Lake has been appointed special census agent for the government to look after the cattle interests of the state and he is now at work on that branch of the business. His special work is to enumerate all the sheep and cattle of Utah and to furnish all the required information about them. This is an important branch of the work here in Utah because of the growing importance of the sheep industry.

Work of Enumerators.

Each enumerator who has been appointed to the position upon the recommendation of Superintendent Pratt is required to undergo a certain amount of schooling before starting out. A book of instructions of over sixty pages is furnished to each, containing detailed information on every point that is liable to come up, and if any of the enumerators is embarrassed in his work it will be because he has not taken the trouble to read up.

Captain I. M. Barratt Tells of Scofield Relief Work.

ORGANIZATION IS GOOD

NINETY-SEVEN FAMILIES BEING SUPPORTED.

Vast Supply of Goods Yet on Hand in the Warehouse—Distributing Agent For The Herald Gives an Idea of What is Now Going on at Scofield.

Captain I. M. Barratt, who has represented The Herald upon the relief committee at Scofield since the May day disaster, arrived home yesterday morning on a belated train for a couple of days' stay. The captain's familiar features are tanned from the outdoor work he has been engaged in, and he looks the picture of health, although his lot for the past twenty-six days has been anything but an easy one to bear.

There is real organization in the relief work," said Captain Barratt, "and things are moving forward much more satisfactorily than they were three weeks ago. In all the committee supplies ninety-seven families with clothing and provisions, and has done so from the first, yet, thanks to the generosity of the state, there has been hardly an impression made on the storehouse, and more provisions are coming in every day.

Wagon Delivers Supplies.

"Every morning a large lumber wagon is sent out, loaded down with groceries, and the same houses are visited each day. The wagon carries such articles as flour, oatmeal, potatoes, salt meat, sugar, butter, eggs, coffee, washing soap, toilet soap, rolled oats, pancake flour, canned goods, baked beans, soups, meats and tinsels.

One day the wagon will deliver at Scofield, and the next day at Winter Quarters, and the people are beginning to appreciate the work. They realize that this great good is being done for them, and to a certain extent, overcome their sensitive feelings that for a time kept them from accepting any charitable offerings.

In these ninety-seven families supported by the committee there are probably 400 women and children, but they do not by any means represent the full number left in that stricken area. A great many have moved away from the camp, never to return. They, of course, are being provided for by relatives or friends in other places.

Mines to Start Monday.

"The camp is beginning to take on a more active appearance. I heard before I left that the mines would resume work Monday morning, but I do not know how accurate that is. Certain it is that many new faces are seen at Scofield, those of men in search of work. It seems to be the opinion that not many of the old miners will go back into the mines, but their places will be filled by men from the outside.

Captain Barratt said, with reference to the manner of disposing of the money raised for the widows, that little had been thought of that. If Superintendent Shurtz gave the money, his attention, he would be the proper man to handle the funds, the people believe, and he may be prevailed upon to take charge of this matter.

No money has been expended from the fund, except for provisions, such as sugar, that have not been donated in any great quantities. As to furnishing clothing, the committee gives orders through the local stores, first having ascertained that the party making application is entitled to aid, and sooner or later the goods must be paid for out of the general fund.

There were some encouraging and some discouraging things reported. The committee has divided its work up among a large number of women, some raising $5, some $10 and some $25 larger amounts. One member of the committee reported that her $10 was the product of 25-cent subscriptions. This was considered one of the most encouraging developments up to date. The ladies at the head of this work argue that by gathering this money through their own efforts both the women of Scofield and the women of Salt Lake will be alike benefited.

As to the size of the general fund, these women take this position: There are 105 widows and 270 children orphaned by the terrible accident at Scofield. The fund for their relief should be sufficiently large to care for them for several years, probably at least five years; to care for them one year and give 50 cents a day to each widow and 25 cents a day to each child for the expenses of living, would cost about $45,000 a year, or for five years, $225,000.

FARDON FOR HASSING.

Offending Captain Has Been Restored to His Former Rank.

Captain O. H. Hassing, who was recently tried by court martial and upon being found guilty of conduct unbecoming in an officer, was suspended for sixty days as captain of company B, N. G. U., has been restored to his former rank.

The official pardon, signed yesterday by Adjutant General Burton, recites that the punishment already inflicted has been sufficiently severe to prevent a recurrence of the incident, and the captain's former good record is taken into consideration in arriving at this conclusion.

County Brings Suit Against Owners of Orchard in Salt Lake.

Suit has been brought by Salt Lake county against Nelson Merkle, Sarah F. Virgin, Susie Cleveland, Martha E. and Lucy Pugnare to recover $4.52, which amount has been assessed against defendants for not spraying trees in an orchard owned by them and located at 112 to 124 North Second West street. Fruit Tree Inspector Sorenson notified defendants, but they did not heed the notice, and the trees had to be sprayed at the county's expense.

The county thus acquired a lien on the property for the amount expended, and sued the court for the refunding of that amount, with interest from Aug. 23 last, that the property be sold to satisfy this lien, and for costs of suit.

POET'S SON IN TROUBLE.

Offspring of Sir Edwin Arnold Under Arrest.

San Francisco, May 26.—The Examiner says that Julian T. Biddulph Arnold, member of the London firm of Kreighley, Arnold & Kreighley, who is under arrest here for embezzlement, is the second son of Sir Edwin Arnold, the famous poet. Young Arnold is also an author, having written a book entitled "Palms and Temples," descriptive of a trip up the Nile.

The extradition papers in his case have been signed and the prisoner will soon be on his way back to England. He says he is anxious to return and have the whole thing over with.
